Comprehensive Soldier and Family Fitness

Combat and its associated risks are obviously not the only mission of the military. But yet physical and emotional wounds, and death, can still claim any one of us without warning. SGT McGarity's passing was one such tragedy. SGT Molana and SPC Girma were two more. On Wednesday we learned of another: PFC Preston Cherry, from Task Force Eagle. Then yesterday – two Title 10 National Guard Soldiers and a Border Patrol Agent died on the border in a helicopter crash. It's more than any of us expected to have to deal with, isn't it?

AR 350-53 is titled "Comprehensive Soldier and Family Fitness" and it addresses physical, emotional, social, spiritual, and family well-being and strength. How are you doing in those five areas of your life...and which one do you believe is the most important? Frankly, that's a bit like asking which wing of an aircraft is more important.

But read Isaiah 40:31 – "Those who wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings like eagles; they shall run and not be weary; they shall walk and not faint." Then there's Jeremiah 17:7-8 – "Blessed is the man who trusts in the Lord, and whose hope is the Lord. For he shall be like a tree planted by the waters, which spreads out its roots by the river, and will not fear when heat comes; but its leaf will be green and will not be anxious in the year of drought, nor will cease from yielding fruit."

While your physical fitness, emotional stability, social relationships, and family environment are all critical to your overall health and performance as a soldier, I suggest that THE most important element is spiritual...your faith and beliefs...because they undergird everything else. So that when doubts come or when fears try to take hold, you remain firmly grounded and are not shaken.

If you need help, a shoulder to cry on, or just someone to vent to, contact your chaplain.
