CHAPLAIN'S CORNER

John 14:23–29

“Troops, in today’s Gospel, Jesus says that the Holy Spirit, whom the Father will send in Christ’s name, will teach his disciples everything. The Holy Spirit is the love shared by the Father and the Son. We have access to this holy heart of God only because the Father sent the Son into the world, into our dysfunction, even to the limits of godforsakenness—and thereby gathered all of the world into the dynamism of the divine life.

Those who live in Christ are not outside of God as petitioners or supplicants; rather, they are in God as friends, sharers in the Spirit. And this spiritual life is what gives us knowledge of God—a knowledge, if you will, from within.

When the great masters of the Christian way speak of knowing God, they do not use the term in its distanced, analytical sense; they use it in the biblical sense, implying knowledge by way of personal intimacy. This is why St. Bernard of Clairvaux, for one, insists that initiates in the spiritual life know God not simply through books and lectures but through experience, the way one friend knows another. That knowledge is what the Holy Spirit facilitates.”

REDEPLOYMENT RESOURCES: For Your Family Members & Loved Ones

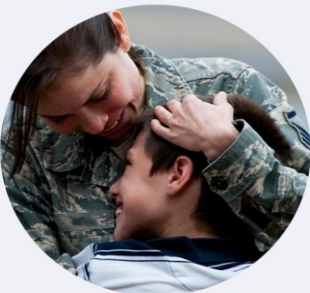

Mental Health After Deployment: What to Know and Where to Get Help

Returning home from deployment can be challenging in a variety of ways for service members. Not only will they be adjusting to a new routine, but they may also be wrestling with strong feelings of fear, sadness or helplessness from their experiences while deployed. While some combat and operational stress reactions are common and heal with time, others may require professional attention. By recognizing the warning signs and knowing how to get help, you and your service member can become more resilient in the face of reintegration challenges.

What to Expect: An Overview of Reunion and Reintegration

Deployment is coming to an end, and service members are finally heading home. Next comes the reunion and reintegration phase. There are five key stages within reunion and reintegration. Learn about the timeline and what you may expect during each stage.

Creating a New Normal as a Family

Even if your family has experienced deployment before, this time things may be different. Things may have changed, and it's okay if you're not able to go back to how things used to be, before the deployment. Focus on how you can make things comfortable and normal for the family.

Five Tips to Support Children During Reintegration

Returning home after deployment is exciting, but it can also be an adjustment for you and your loved ones. For children in particular, it may be emotional or confusing. To help your children with the transition, it's important to develop a plan that's personalized for their age, level of understanding and development stage.

MEMORIAL DAY

Every Picture Tells a Story

FOB EAGLE MEMORIAL DAY

On Memorial Day, service members at FOB Eagle paused to honor and remember those who made the ultimate sacrifice in defense of our nation. The day served as both a solemn tribute and a meaningful reminder of the freedoms secured through their courage.

The observance began this week with a Field of Honor Display, where soldiers reflected on the legacy of the fallen, surrounded by symbolic tributes representing each branch of service.

In the spirit of unity and remembrance, troops also came together for moments of comradery, capturing Memorial Day photos and sharing stories of their time in the service. The balance of reverence and morale-building highlighted the deep connection between service, sacrifice, and the enduring bonds of military brotherhood.

As Memorial Day came to a close, one sentiment echoed across the base: we honor the fallen by living with purpose, pride, and unbreakable commitment to each other and the mission.
