About the AFCT

The ASVAB exam is authorized for civilian recruits only. Soldiers who want to improve their original ASVAB score may be administered the Armed Forces Classification Test (AFCT), which is the active component of the ASVAB. Soldiers may not take the AFCT any earlier than six (6) months after the date of their MEPS ASVAB exam. There is no limit to the amount of times you may take the AFCT; however, there must be six (6) months between each retest.

Trying to get that score up? Here's what you need to focus on:

General Technical (GT) –

- Word Knowledge (WK)
- Paragraph Comprehension (PC)
- Arithmetic Reasoning (AR)

About the DLAB

The DLAB is used to determine language aptitude for Soldiers applying for language training. Certain MOSs may require DLAB testing, such as Special Forces (SF) and Military Intelligence (MI) fields. A passing score is 95; retesting after obtaining a 95 or higher requires an approved exception to policy (ETP). Justification for an exception must include relevant military reasons attested to by the unit commander.

Personnel who fail to achieve a passing score may retest in six (6) months. First and second retests may be given after six (6) months on approval of the immediate commander. The qualifying DLAB score required to study a particular language can be found in AR 11-6, Army Foreign Language Program.

About the DLPT

The DLPT is used to evaluate language proficiency, or to add a Language Identifier to a Soldier's MOS. Soldiers holding a Language Identifier and working in their MOS using that language are eligible to receive college credit based on their language training or test scores.
