FOR IMMEDIATE PUBLIC RELEASE:

Mineral Wells' Fort Wolters to Perform Prescribed Burns

CAMP MABRY, Texas (Jan. 11, 2013) – The Texas Military Forces are scheduled to conduct prescribed burns within training areas on Fort Wolters, a Texas Army National Guard Training Facility, near Mineral Wells, Texas, on Wednesday, Jan. 16, 2013, but may take place in the days following, weather permitting.

The Texas National Guard's military readiness and natural resources management objectives require a comprehensive wildland fire management program aimed at protecting life and property, supporting military training and promoting ecosystem health. Prescribed burns are an integral part this program.

The organization uses a well-designed burn plan to safely conduct its prescribed burns. The burn plan states the atmospheric and environmental conditions necessary to conduct a safe burn, clearly defines the boundaries of the area to be burned and provides details of specific precautionary measures that must be implemented prior to each burn.

For more information regarding the prescribed burn program at Fort Wolters, contact the Texas Army National Guard's Wildland Fire Management Coordinator at 512-782-6037.
